“Americana Soul” is used to describe MOTOR HONEY. Their eclectic, refreshing mix of rock, soul and funky grooves have been a part of the Detroit Music scene since 2006. This female fronted 5 piece band exhibits their love for music onstage by rocking out to a mix of originals and a slew of great cover tunes done in a “Mo Ho” style. Despite their witty and comical nature, the band’s hard work and late nights have them set to release their latest cd in Spring 2015. They will gladly open up for Bonnie Raitt, Susan Tedeschi or The Black Keys at Cobo Center anytime. www.motorhoneyband.com

TILTED AXES: Music for Mobile Electric Guitars: Combining the energy of rock, the creative discipline of theater, and the experimental spirit of the downtown NYC arts scene, Tilted Axes is both a processional event, and an ensemble of mobile electric guitarists created by composer/performer Patrick Grant. The guitarists of Tilted Axes perform original compositions written specifically for the event by Grant using portable amplifiers strapped to their sides as they walk through the city streets. The procession of musicians moves along predetermined routes in selected areas, in honor of an event, landmark, or organization unique to that community. Since its inception, Tilted Axes has evolved as a project with multiple incarnations in New York, Detroit, and Düsseldorf, Germany. In 2015 the project will manifest itself in performances in the USA, Europe, and South America. <http://www.tiltedaxes.com>
